

Employee Leave Rights for Election Day

As the 2016 U.S. presidential election draws near, employers should be prepared to handle requests from employees for time off from work to vote on Election Day, which is Nov. 8, 2016.

Federal law does not require employers to provide their employees with time off to vote. However, many states have voting leave laws that allow employees to take time off to vote in certain circumstances. The specifics vary by state, but many of these voting leave laws:

- ✓ Require the leave to be paid;
- ✓ Impose a notice requirement on employees; and
- ✓ Allow employers to designate the hours during which employees may be absent to vote.

Employers should be aware of the voting leave laws that apply to them and be prepared to comply with any applicable requirements.

HIGHLIGHTS

STATE VOTING LEAVE LAWS

- Most states have laws requiring employers to provide time off from work to vote.
- Time off from work to vote must be paid in many states.

- In many states, employees who have sufficient time to vote during their non-working hours are not eligible for leave.

NOTICE REQUIREMENTS

- Some state laws require employees to provide their employers with notice of the leave.
- Employers in New York and California must post a notice regarding voting leave laws.

STATE-BY-STATE VOTING LAWS

State	Leave Requirements
Alabama	Employees may take up to one hour of leave to vote in any municipal, county, state, or federal primary or general election. However, if an employee's work schedule begins at least two hours after the polls open, or ends at least one hour prior to the polls closing, the employee is not eligible for voting leave. Employees must provide reasonable notice to their employers if they require time off to vote. The employer may specify the hours of leave. Ala. Code 1975 § 17-1-5
Alaska	Employers must provide employees with paid leave to vote on an election day, unless the employee has two consecutive hours of non-working time, either between the opening of the polls and the start of his or her shift, or between the close of the polls and the end of his or her shift. AS § 15.15.100; AS § 15.56.100
Arizona	Employers must provide employees with paid leave to vote in a primary or general election, unless they have at least three hours before or after work to do so. Employers must provide an amount of leave that would give employees three consecutive hours (including non-working time) to vote at the polls. Employees must apply for leave prior to election day. Employers may designate the hours that employees may be absent. A.R.S § 16-402
Arkansas	Employers must schedule employee work hours on election day in a way that will allow employees the opportunity to vote. A.C.A. § 7-1-102
California	Employers must provide employees who do not have sufficient time outside of working hours to vote on an election day with leave for voting purposes. An eligible employee is entitled to take as much time off as necessary to vote. However, employers are only required to pay the employee for up to two hours of missed work time for voting leave. In addition, unless the employer and employee agree otherwise, an employee may only take leave at the beginning or end of his or her regular working shift (whichever allows the most free time for voting and the least time off from his or her regular working shift).

If, on the third working day before an election, the employee knows or has reason to believe that he or she will need time off to vote, the employee must give the employer at least two working days' notice of his or her intent to take leave.

Employers must post a notice informing employees of their voting leave rights at least 10 days before every statewide election. The notice must be posted conspicuously at the workplace or where it can be seen as employees come or go to their place of work. The California Secretary of State's office has provided sample notices in both English and Spanish. Cal. Elec. Code § 14000; Cal. Elec. Code § 14001

Colorado

Employers must provide employees with up to two hours of paid leave to vote in any primary or general election. An employer is not required to grant voting leave to any employee who has three or more hours off from work while the polls are open. Employees must apply for leave prior to election day. The employer may specify the hours during which the employee may be absent. However, if the employee requests that the time away from work be at the beginning or end of the work shift, the employer must grant this request. Colo. Rev. Stat. § 1-7-102 employees may take leave to vote. Mo. Rev. Stat. § 115.639

Montana No specific law requiring time off to vote

Nebraska Employees must be allowed up to two consecutive hours of paid time off to vote on an election day. Employees must apply for leave in advance of election day, and the employer may specify the hours during which the employee may take leave. Employees who have at least two consecutive hours of non-work time when the polls are open to vote are not eligible for leave. In addition, allowing an employee less than two hours of leave is permissible if the time away from work combined with the employee's non-work time is at least two consecutive hours between the opening and closing of the polls. Neb. Rev. St. § 32-922

Nevada An employer must grant an employee sufficient time away from work in order to vote, if it is impracticable for the employee to vote during non-working hours. "Sufficient time" is based on the distance from the worksite to the polling location, not exceeding three hours. An employee must request leave to vote prior to the day of the election. Employers may designate the hours during which the employee may take leave to vote. Voting leave must be paid. N.R.S. 293.463

New Hampshire No specific law requiring time off to vote

New Jersey No specific law requiring time off to vote

New Mexico Employers must allow employees up to two hours of paid leave to vote on an election day. However, voting leave is not required for an employee whose workday begins two or more hours after the polls open or ends three or more hours before the polls close. An employer may designate the hours an employee may take leave to vote. An employee who takes leave to vote may not be liable for any penalty. N.M.S.A. 1978 § 1-12-42

New York An employee who does not have enough time to vote outside of his or her working hours is entitled to take as much time off from work as necessary to vote, taking into account any voting time available to the employee outside of working hours. Up to two hours of the employee's voting leave must be paid. If the employee requires more than two hours of leave to vote, the amount of leave granted beyond two hours may be unpaid.

An employee is deemed to have enough time to vote outside of his or her working hours if the employee has four consecutive hours between either:

- The opening of the polls and the beginning of his or her working shift; or
- The end of his or her working shift and the closing of the polls.

The employee must notify his or her employer of the need to take time off from work to vote two to 10 days in advance of an election day. An employer is required to grant leave only at the beginning or end of an employee's work shift, and may designate when the employee takes leave.

Employers must post a notice informing employees of their right to take voting leave at least 10 days before an election day. The notice must remain posted until polls close on the election day. ### West Virginia

Employers must provide employees with up to three hours of paid leave to vote on an election day. An employee must request voting leave in writing at least three days prior to election day. However, an employee will not be eligible for voting leave if he or she has three or more hours of non-work time when the polls are open (although an employer may choose to provide the employee with unpaid time to vote). In essential government, health, hospital, transportation and communication services, and in production, manufacturing and processing works requiring continuity in operation, employers may schedule employee voting leave to avoid disrupting essential services and business operations. W. Va. Code § 3-1-42

Wisconsin

An employee may be absent from work for up to three consecutive hours to vote, if the employee notifies his or her employer of the intended absence before the day of the election. The employer may designate the time of day for the absence. Employers are not required to pay employees for voting leave. However, no penalty other than a deduction for time lost may be imposed on an employee because he or she takes voting leave. W.S.A. 6.76

Wyoming

An employer must provide up to one hour of paid leave to an employee in order to vote in any primary, general or special election. The employer may designate the most convenient time for the employee to take voting leave (other than a meal hour). Employees who have three or more consecutive non-working hours during the time the polls are open are not eligible for voting leave. W.S. 1977 § 22-2-111
